THEATRICAL.

Columbia To-day.

At the Columbia to-day "A Prisoner in the Harem," in four reels will be shown. The atmosphere in this story of thrill and unique sensationalism is pungent with the aroma of mysterious, treacherous, voluptuous India. The spectacle of women being traded like merchandise and cattle, represents an interesting problem of modern civilization in the East. The animal interest, interwoven with the theme and plot produces a combination at once forcefully interesting and compelling. To it all are added touches of genius reflecting the personalities of Countess de Marini in the title role and the artistry of Herbert Blache, the producing director. Torn, the beautiful daughter of a Hindu, miser, inspires the Raja with inordinate desire for her acquisition to his harem. By his order she is purchased, although she is affianced to Akbar, a peasant youth. Deaf to her pleadings and protestations, she is taken to the palace where she makes a very unruly queen. Akbar, with the aid of a tamed tiger, aids his imprisoned sweetheart to escape, but they are recaptured and Akbar is sentenced to be devoured by his pet tiger which is deprived of food for several days. This plan failing, the inexorable monarch orders that hungry lions be let into Akbar's cell, so that both he and his tiger be destroyed at once. Torn is forced to witness her sweetheart's torture from the Royal box. The maddened tiger, however, comes to the aid of its master, and an encounter between the two animals ensues with the result that the lion is killed. The infuriated Raja himself undertakes to execute his prisoner, but the tiger leaps on his back and mauls the monarch to death. Events then follow in rapid succession. In the tumult Akbar escapes. The Raja's brother succeeds to the throne, and Torn is ordered sacrificed on the altar of fire. But Akbar, the tiger and the English soldiers arrive in time to prevent this outrage.

Alamo Theatre.

"The Pride of Jennico" will be the attraction at the Alamo this afternoon and evening. The story is told when fortune and glory were carved by the sword, Basil Jennico, the descendant of a proud and haughty house, walking among the old ancestral chambers, dreams of his gallant forefathers and their daring deeds performed for the smile of a lady fair. Inspired by his lofty heritage and the atmosphere of nobility and bravery in which he has been reared, Basil longs for love and adventure. At this romantic period of Basil's life, his aged uncle, the lineal head of his house, dies and makes Basil swear by the sword that he will always uphold the pride of Jennico. Basil becomes Lord of Tollenhall and master of the broad acres of the Duchy of Lausitz, but titles, estates and splendor do not compensate for the absence of love. Princess Otilie, a beautiful, whimsical maiden, is urged by her guardian, to marry Prince Eugen, a worthless rogue, whom Otilie fears and loathes. To avoid marrying Eugen, the Princess effects her escape from the castle in the guise of her maid, Marie, who follows after her mistress. The two are overtaken by a storm and seek shelter of Jennico Castle.

Marie is introduced to Jennico as the Princess, but Jennico falls madly in love with Otilie, whom he believes to be the maid. Love and pride struggle for supremacy. Jennico is heart-broken, because his sworn duty to maintain the dignity of his house prohibits his marriage to the maid. The wilful, fascinating maid intimates to Jennico that the Princess admires him, and, repressing love for duty, he courts the "princess." The marriage is arranged. Princess Otilie and her maid confer and arrange to change places at the altar. Jennico greets his bride, heavily veiled, but when at last he looks upon her face he sees the piquant, mocking Otilie and thinks he has married the maid. Love bids him accept his happiness, but his pride asserts itself and he reverts to the supposed deception. Otilie, noticing his anger and pique because he is not content with her regardless of her apparent low rank, leaves him. Desperate for the love of the absent and tantalizing beauty, he seeks the supposed maid, encounters the bitter enmity and jealousy of the defeated Prince Eugen and his trusted force; but, despite all opposition and against all odds, he wins his way to Otilie's heart to find that valor has not only won him a heart of gold, but a title that adds to the pride of Jennico.

INTEREST CENTERED IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAGUE.

Much interest is being manifested in the opening of the Bourbon county Sunday School League. The first games will be played next Saturday afternoon at Spears' Mill, between Hutchison and Millersburg. The young men to compose the teams are working hard to get into condition for the opening of the season, and it is expected some interesting contests will result.

The two teams to represent this city in the league will have practice Wednesday afternoon at White Park. One team will be selected from the Sunday schools of the denominational churches and one team to be selected from the Sunday School of the Christian Church. Those at the head of the teams here believe they will have an abundance of material from which to pick the teams, and the work of selecting the best players will begin at the practice to-morrow afternoon.
